

The artwork is created by Anirban Ghosh, an Experience Designer from ThoughtWorks India. He has derived inspiration from some of the social justice movements across the globe.

Workers from ThoughtWorks stand in solidarity against racism and police violence

The brutal police killing of George Floyd has catalyzed recognition that racism cuts black lives short in every society. The Black Lives Matter movement has inspired global solidarity and determination to fight racism everywhere in all its different forms of expression.

“I can’t breathe” has become the tragic expression of white supremacy in countries like Canada and Australia.

“I can’t breathe” also echoes the caste-related violence in India, the xenophobia against refugees in Europe, and the colonialist violence against indigenous, black and brown people in Latin America, Africa and Asia.

The war waged on black, brown and indigenous lives by institutionalised racism within police forces and systemic discrimination against first nations peoples, migrant workers, immigrants and asylum seekers must end.

As ThoughtWorkers, we condemn systemic racism, all forms of discrimination, white supremacy, and police violence. We renew our commitment to add our voices and our talents to join, support and amplify movements working to build a world where everyone can breathe freely.
